

Doltyn Snedden

Difference in Audiences

When it comes to the style of music that Waka Flocka Flame writes, I have spent hours trying to justify the lyrics that he writes. His music is full of vulgarity and really, I feel there is no underlying meaning to what he is saying. On one particular interview that I found on YouTube, Waka Flocka is reading comments on one of his music videos. One comment in particular read, "This music is s***. I don't understand how anyone can listen to it and find any value in it whatsoever." With this line, I finally understood what Waka Flockja Flame was all about. He replied, "I totally agree with you. My lyrics really do not have value. They sing about partying and living young; but my past and my journey makes up for that. I have lost a father, a brother, and have been shot and almost lost myself, and now I realize that we only live once. I have been so low in my life that I couldn't be more proud of where I am now. So I'm going to brag." This reply finalized what I thought about his music and him as a whole. He truly is in the industry just to make a name for himself.